European Authors Now Writing Successful Performance Is Given at the Metropolitan Opera House.

Mrs. Pat Campbell and Marie Minstrel First Part Shows De Wolf Hopper in Middle of Circle.

The gambolling Lambs reached the he visited many of the principal Metropolitan Opera House yesterday Europe, Lee Shubert, the theatrireturned yesterday on the Fifth avenue and Broadway in time to He was met on board the face an audience which crowded the great teamer by his brother, J. J. Shubert, and auditorium and was as spectacular as any that gathers there when the theatre is Shubert said that of all the times he devoted to its usual purposes.

There was never a more liberal gambol than this one, never, some of its admirers truck me particularly during my thought, one that was so amusing and so said Mr. Shubert, "was the fact that rich in the celebrities of the stage. The opean author has learned to write predatory purposes of these performances for the American market. Instead of is to build a new clubhouse. It seems writing purely local plays, to be understood only a few years ago that the first of only by their own public, English, French and German authors are now writing plays of building the present home of which can be understood in any language.

But there in the minstrel first part last night sat De Wolf Hopper, sonorous and impressive with all the polish and dignity omplete. Not only have the American plays seen there lately been great successes, but each individual American artist who has appeared in London during the last six months has scored the hit of his or her career. A prominent feature of the London season is the improvement in the musical revues. They are more intelligent and brighter, and of course correspondingly more successful. as end men. But just that all the fame and talent might not be absorbed by the end men, there sat in the circle Effingham Pinto, Bruce McRae, William Farnum, Henry Woodruff, Digby Bell, William Elliott, George Nash, Frederick Perry,

Most of the minstrel jokes seemed new and the more or less familiar ones were embellished with novel touches ones were embellished with novel touches that gave them freshness. No single part of the long programme kept the audience more amused than the black faced introduction.

It was after this minstrel first part, lasting longer than anybody had supposed it could, that four cartoonists, Winsor Mc-Cay, R. F. Outcault, Hy Mayer and George McManus, gave an exhibition of their ability as quick workers. In "The Rainbow Cocktail" Roy and Kenneth Webb and Hassard Short had designed a dance number that made all its predecessors from the days of the "Florodora" sextette down to the latest variation of the tango seem drab and unconvincing In this were Effingham Pinto, Glenn Halt, Henry Woodruff, Edwin Stevens, Will Deming, Richard Tabor and William

"While in London I also arranged with Allen Aynesworth to bring over his English company now playing "A Pair of Silk Stockings" at the Criterion Theatre. This is a comedy by Cyril Harcourt.

"I pin a great deal of faith to a play which I acquired just before my departure. This is a comedy in three acts by H. F. Rubenstein, entitled 'Consequences.' It was first produced at the Galety Theatre in Manchester by Miss Horniman's company, and was then brought to London, where it scored an immediate hit at the Coronet. 'Consequences' treats in a humorous vein the vexed question of intermarriage between Jew and Gentile.

"Other English plays which I have acquired include 'The Green Dragoons' and Critic' of Sheridan, that brought the long Critic' of Sheridan, that brought the long control of the programme began with a morality play, "Experience," by George W. Mr. Hobert's allegory was just the sort of a thing that an actor dearly loves. It might have been lightened by a little humor.

There was strength in the scenes of the sufferings from drugs and a brutal study of a criminal was furnished by Wilton Lackaye, who was warmly welcomed by the audience when he appeared in the guise of a guilty apache. Effingham Pinto played Passion in a vividly passionate red frock and all the actors made strongly marked character studies out of their roles. There seemed in spite of all these merits a great deal of "experience."

Wills Makes Audience Laugh,

Nat Wills made the audience laugh with ten minutes of his stories and explained that Brazil was called the country of the nuts because Theodore Roosevelt got $3,000 there for delivering a speech. William Courtleigh auctioned a pro-gramme for $500 and that increased the receipts from the sale of the programmes, which were sold at 25 cents apiece to everybody in the theatre. The receipts apart from what the programmes brought amounted to $23,800, which was another lement in the great success of the gambol. The performance must have been worth McKim Hollins, Al all this merely in the quantity of it, since George G. Bourne.

When he returned to the stage the audience saw what had happened, and Mr. Kreisler was greeted with great enthusiasm. Mr. Kreisler is one of the few artists decorated by the French Government. The petition was signed in March by all #### the instructors of the conservatoir Half of Brooklyn Bridge to Close.

For several weeks, beginning Monday morning, the north roadway of the Brook-lyn Bridge will be closed to all vehicles except trolley cars, as more space is needed for completion of the loop sub-way connection between Brooklyn Bridge and the Municipal Building. It is ex-pected that the job will be finished by
